EXTRA EXTRA

These various honor rolls single out individuals who achieved outstanding grades during the past six weeks.

Being on the honor roll is a great accomplishment and indicates much interest, ability, and willingness to work. It also brings the "honor student" more consideration at college application and employment time.

The competition is keen; for example, the roll of high honor is made up of only those students who receive four A's. The roll of honor lists those students who received three A's and one B, and the roll of honorable mention names those students who received two A's and two B's or three A's and one C. These are based on the student's top four grades only.
